SUBJECT: Minutes for Seoul Computer Club Aug. 14, 2004

The Seoul Computer Club met at the USO at Camp Kim, Saturday, Aug. 14, 2004. The turn-out was excellent, over 30 people.

Host, B.J. Gleason opened with interesting news while attendees enjoyed sub sandwiches and sodas. A special plaque was presented to Jim Lentz for his faithful service to the club. Jim will be missed.

The Beginners Corner was presented by our Publicity Officer, John Phillips. His presentation was on Autolt, a windows scripting tool. Autolt simulates keystrokes, mouse movements and windows commands. It is helpful in automating windows based tasks. It can be used for automatically installing software or for most simple windows tasks. Mary French presented the main topic on website fundamentals.

It was agreed that we would pay the cable bill to the U.S.O.

The meeting was adjourned at 1630 hours. Next month's main topic will be presented by John Milburn on September 14, 2004.
